Mob Violence Felt In Striker's Trial

Union Men Seized By Mob and Given Midnight Lashing

Action of Mob Follows Mistrial Order In Murder Case

ATTORNEY SOUGHT

Man Who Defended Strikers Sought At His Home By Mob

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 10.—(P)—Exposing marks and bruises on their bodies as proof of their statements that they had been spirited away from Gastonia last night and beaten by an anti-Communist mob, three men returned to Charlotte early today.

The men beaten were Ben Wells, textile union organizer, C. M. Lell and C. B. Saylor, Gastonia textile workers on strike. They said they were seized by the mob, taken to a lonely spot about eight miles from Concord, whipped severely and left to make their way back as best they could.

They were seized by a mob which formed at Gastonia after a mistrial had been declared in the case of the 16 striking textile workers and leaders charged with the murder of O. P. Adersholt, Gastonia police chief.

The mob did not remain in Gastonia but visited Charlotte and Bessemer City, milling around the apartment house where Tom Jimison, defense attorney lives.

Harvard To Establish City Planning School

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 10.—The first School of City Planning in the United States is to be established at Harvard University this fall with the aid of the Rockefeller Foundation.

Plans for the school, almost completed, call for an organization similar to that of the School of Landscape Architecture, and housed with these schools in Robinson Hall.

A chair of regional planning, given to Harvard by James P. Curtis at the end of the last academic year, will be the nucleus about which the new school will be formed.

Treasurer Asked To Hold Warrant

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 10.—Discovering yesterday that "H. W. Smith," for whom the auditor's office issued a warrant last week for $200 for services as an employee of the state Revenue Department, is Pine Bluff, State Auditor J. Oscar Humphrey requested State Representative Henry W. Smith, of Jefferson, to stop payment on the warrant when it is presented to the treasurer's office.

Mr. Humphrey said the list of employees certified to his office by the Revenue Department contained the name of "H. W. Smith," but that it was overlooked when the list was checked against an official roster of the legislature, on which Representative Smith was listed as Henry Smith.

The voucher was issued at the same time as vouchers for Representatives A. A. Pierce and George F. Brown, but the latter two were turned down by the Auditor's office and no warrants were issued. The Smith warrant is said to have been mailed to the Camden office by the Revenue Department along with warrants for income tax employees at the Camden branch office, but was returned because of officials at that office said no person by that name was employed there.

Revenue Commissioner David A. Gates said last night the Smith voucher was issued in routine business along with other vouchers, when a large force of temporary employees was dropped September 1, and that he knows nothing of the course the voucher and warrant are said to have followed after they were issued.

Giant Lighting System At Army Field In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 10.—Twelve miles of cables will carry current for lighting Randolph Field, the "West Point of the Air," which the Army is completing near here. Flood lights with a half mile radius are to be installed. Other lights will border the entire field.

Flood lights will enable night use of either of two landing fields. One is for use when north and south winds prevail and the other for use when winds are east or west.

Light Rays and Electric Devices Trained On Pests

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Light rays and electricity are being used upstate in exterminating insect pests.

Electric light traps, consisting of water upon which a covering of oil has been poured, entices the insect, who invariably falls into the film of oil and is unable to arise.

An electrified screen stable door has proved feasible. The screen is charged with high voltage static, deadly to pests but harmless to humans.

Michigan Honeymooners Visiting Relatives Here

Mr. and Mrs. Hale Bowden, of Detroit and Mr. Bowden's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Bowden, of near Hope, were guests Monday in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davis and Mrs. Charles Taylor.

The Michigan couple were married only recently and are taking a honeymoon trip, visiting with Mr. Bowden's parents and other relatives here.

Juror Campbell, whose attack of insanity ended the trial of the Gastonia mill strikers, is the man in the white suit, third from left, in the front row. The complete list of jurors, reading from left to right, follows: C. W. Martin, E. M. Stillwell, J. O. McCoy, John Phillips, J. G. Campbell, A. J. Parker, J. W. Hicks, G. L. Benson, S. L. Caldwell, Zeb Morris, C. G. Torrence and G. L. Shuford.

Company 'A' Boys Show Improvement

Maxwell Rearing To Come Home and Massey Is Ready, Too

Clarence Maxwell and Thomas Massey, members of local unit of the Arkansas National Guard were sent to the Army and Navy Hospital from camp at Little Rock, are improving nicely, a letter from Sergeant Maxwell says, and are leaving to come home soon as the M. D.'s will permit.

Maxwell, who suffered a fractured skull, is well, he says, but the surgeons do not want him to leave the hospital until about October 1. Massey who was sent over suffering from what was thought to be an attack of appendicitis, rounded into shape without an operation and will be ready to return when Maxwell does.

Theft of Two Sewing Machines Remains Mystery

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 10.—The theft of one sewing machine is not uncommon or anything to get excited over, but when two are taken from the same place within a week, then the plot thickens.

And in this case the plot has thickened to such an extent that the local police are mystified.

Last week a large, bulky sewing machine, valued at $180, was taken from a local store without any of the doors or windows being tampered with. No clues of any kind were left. A few days ago a portable machine was missing in the same mysterious manner.

Where the machine might have disappeared or what time of the day, is still unknown. The owner of the store is completely without explanation.

Thrice Widower In Year, Man, 70, Takes On No. 4

SOUTHBIDGE, Mass., Sept. 10.—A year ago the wife of Jules Livermois, 70, died.

Two months later he married Valerie Prevost.

Shortly afterward she died and Livermois married his brother's widow, Georgiana Martin.

The third Mrs. Livermois died three months ago and now he is honeymooning with wife No. 4, the former Mrs. John B. Desrosiers, 68.

Flapper' Teacher Stays On the Job

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 10.—Sought to be ousted by the Parent-Teacher Association of her school because she was a product of the flapper age, a young school teacher in this section quietly went on teaching today, awaiting the decision Saturday of the County Board of Education, the body having authority to pass on the vexatious problem.

Miss Mildred Doyle, 23, principal of a county high school opened classes this morning without interference. The chairman of the school board said his body would conduct a hearing at its next regular session when the charges were formally presented.

Everybody is invited to fill up a lunch basket, look up the old song-books and come enjoy the day.

Says Will Not Pay Members of Legislature for Income Work

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 10.—(P)—State Auditor Humphrey today refused to honor a warrant for $21.21 for expenses of Representative A. A. Pierce, of Ashley county income tax inspector employed in the state revenue department.

The voucher was marked illegal when presented by a local bank for payment. It bore the endorsement of two banks, the former of which had advanced the money to Pierce.

Gates said that he stands pat on the proposition the legislators be entitled to pay for their work in the department but the auditor refuses to honor the vouchers and no money has been paid them yet.

Battle Field Singing Will Be Sunday Feature

Folks in the Battle Field community announce an all-day singing for next Sunday, the Washington quartette to be the day's vocal feature.

Everybody is invited to fill up a lunch basket, look up the old song-books and come enjoy the day.

No Use Talking, Watermelons Are Good or Better Any Way You Get 'Em Fixed

The guy who first remarked there was nothing new under the sun is all wrong and we're in position this morning to prove it to him.

Which is statement No. One.

And these Hope watermelons are good any way you fix 'em and good without any fixing. And that's something else we can prove.

Which is statement No. Two.

Mrs. L. D. Rider, of Palmos, this morning sent Star in a jar of watermelon pickles. No, not preserves. We said PICKLES—and if they taste half as good as they look there's going to be a pickle-eating around this office about this p. m.

The pickle jar is full of melons about the size you ordinarily see in jars of baby cucumber pickles. They were treated exactly as we cucumbers when prepared for pickling, said Mrs. Rider, and possesses a distinctive flavor not found in anything else. Mr. Rider says he brought 'em up here just to show the world that a Hope watermelon is good from the time it is no larger than your little finger until it gets to weigh 150 pounds.

Ray Anderson must have some inside information about these pickles, for he sends a runner over to inquire when the jar will be opened. The inquiry was met with the suggestion that if the genial president of the Chamber of Commerce would bring over some sandwiches we'd see about the pickles. There has no response from him yet—but every once or twice in a while he meanders by the front door of Star office to see if that jar of pickles is still safely parked on the Angel's desk.

Pickled watermelons—There's a palate-tickling sound to the very words and we'll give you results of the sampling at a later date.

Senate Inquires Into Mr. Shearer

Wants To Know Something of the Reason For Activities

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(P)—An investigation into activities of ship building corporations in connection with the naval limitations conference was being discussed in the senate naval committee at the same hour the White House made public a letter from the Bethlehem steel corporation telling of its relations with Wm. B. Shearer, self-styled naval propagandist.

The committee decided it would request the senate for a full investigation of Shearer's work, with special attention to his statement that he represented three ship-building concerns at the unsuccessful naval limitations conference in 1927.

The charge involved today was the same as that on which he was previously indicted and was returned to correct alleged defects in the original indictment according to A. B. Cypert, prosecuting attorney.

Cypert said he would attempt to obtain an early trial of Caudle on the indictment resulting from charges made on the floor of the senate by Senator Quarles, of Helena, that Caudle had offered him money to vote for the legalizing of pari-mutuel betting.

Shortly after Quarles statement the bill passed by a vote of 17-10, but was later vetoed by Governor Parnell.

A demurrer and motion to quash the original indictment were filed by Caudle's attorney's here and an appeal is now pending in the Supreme Court on the ruling of Judge Harris in sustaining the demurrer. No action was taken on the motion to quash.

One other person was indicted by the grand jury in connection with the racing bill, but officers have so far been unable to locate him and place him in custody.

McRae Goes Home From Hospital

Sheriff Dorsey McRae, who recently underwent a second major operation before he had fully regained his strength from the first, has sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital and was this morning carried to his home on East Third street where he will finish the job of getting well.

The officer's condition for a time was thought to be serious but he developed an unexpected store of reserve vitality, rounded the first dangerous corner and now is on the highway to good health, requiring a bit of time to get his strength back.

State Firemen In Session at Camden

CAMDEN, Sept. 10.—(P)—With speeches, fire fighting exhibitions and demonstrations of fire-fighting apparatus on the program the eighth annual convention of Arkansas firemen opened its three-day session here this morning.

More than 150 delegates and visitors had registered in for the event, with the majority of the delegates expected to arrive during the day.

Income Tax Payments Swell Treasury Receipts

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 10.—(P)—Payment of $175,000 income tax payments was made to the state treasury today by David A. Gates, revenue commissioner. This brings the total to $228,215,000 paid since the Hall law became effective.

Every bath tub in Aix La Chapelle was today sealed officially with lead and made unusable as an emergency water conservation measure.

Water connections in garages were also sealed and the tax raised to 25 cents per cubic metre. Extremely dry weather of recent months has created the water shortage.

Popular Poultry Specialist Dead

Aided Hempstead County Farmers To Get Started Raising Turkeys

Word was received in Hope today of the recent death in a St. Louis hospital of C. B. Wesco, Missouri Pacific poultry specialist who was well known through Hempstead county.

It was Mr. Wesco who started and helped to put on a solid basis the turkey-raising industry in the county, to make no mention of his assistance to those going in for paying poultry flocks. He made many friends here and his death will be a matter of genuine regret to all.

Boiler Hurlled Through Air for Long Distance

Two Men Scalded By Escaping Steam, Building Shaken

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN

Investigation Under Way To Determine Cause of Blast

TEXARKANA, Sept. 10.—(P)—An explosion of a boiler seriously injured two workmen, partly wrecked two buildings and hurled the massive tank more than two blocks where it crashed through the roof of a building in the business district early today.

Ray Tatum, 28, and Pete Conkara, 18, both of Texarkana were severely scalded by steam when the rear end of the Southern Creameries plant was wrecked by a boiler explosion shortly after nine o'clock. The force of the explosion tore the rear of the creameries building, ripped away a corner of a motor building across the alley and carried the boiler 500 feet up in the air and two blocks away, crashing through the roof of a vacant store building and through the floor and into the basement.

Windows in the vicinity were shattered and firemen who investigated the occurrence said it was only by a miracle the two injured men escaped death.

Tatum was washing butter tubs in the rear door of the room and Wayman was passing through the room to another part of the building when the explosion occurred.

An investigation was begun immediately to determine the cause of the occurrence.

COLDSHOT, Eng., Sept. 10—Squadron leader A. H. Orelbar, captain of the British Schneider cup team, today raced down a marked course of three kilometers here and set a new world's speed record, traveling faster than any human has ever traveled before. He made 368.8 miles per hour.

Borglum Completes Memorial To Wilson

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 10.—Gutzon Borglum, original sculptor of the Stone Mountain memorial, has practically completed in his studio here, the model for Poland's memorial to Woodrow Wilson.

"There can be no peace with victory" is the theme for the memorial suggested by that phrase from Wilson's second Lusitania note. The model depicts Wilson throwing aside the scholastic gown and entering world activities.

The memorial will have a 12-foot figure of President Wilson in bronze on a granite base. Back of the statue will be a pylon four and a half feet high and 12 feet wide. At the other end of the large granite base will be a map of the Polish republic.

The statue will be cast in New York after the model has been completed. Artist Borglum announces. It is to be erected on plac Wolposki in Poznan (formerly Posen).

Walnut Tree 400 Years Old Brings Big Check

LEBANON, Ill., Sept. 10.—A giant walnut tree, which had attained great stature and spread of limb, has been removed from the lawn of Mrs. Clara Z. Mason here. A check for $400 was handed Mrs. Mason when a lumber company carted the huge tree away. Lumber men for years had been tempting Mrs. Mason with offers for the tree.

The tree's age was estimated at 200 years. Its trunk was five feet in diameter and the lowest branch was seventeen feet from the ground. It was estimated that 1,534 board feet of lumber would be produced from the mammoth trunk.

The tree was bought by the Penrod-Jurden-Clark Company of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Transfer Passenger From Airship to Plane in Air

Here's how an airplane was hooked on to a giant dirigible and a passenger transferred to the plane in mid-air in the first test of the kind ever made, witnessed by 100,000 awed spectators at the National Air races at Cleveland. Lieutenant A. W. Gordon, navy flier, below, hooked his standard navy fighting plane (shown below) to a device lowered from the Los Angeles over the airship, with a narrow indicator showing how the hook-up between plane and dirigible was made. The thrilling mid-air stunt as performed to demonstrate the ability of dirigibles as airplane carriers, as the two new dirigibles now being built for the navy will each carry several planes to take off and return in mid air.

Small Island In West Indies Is Bird Paradise

TOBAGO, West Indies, Sept. 10. —The island of Little Tobago, 11 miles from this port, has become the only bird paradise in the world. This small island of less than 500 acres attracted the attention some years ago, of Sir William Ingham, former proprietor of the London Illustrated News.

He conceived the idea of making it a paradise for birds of every size and description and imported a large number of birds of Paradise which have thrived and multiplied in their new surroundings.

On the death of Sir William the island went to Lady Ingham for life. On her death in October, 1925, Sir Herbert Ingham and Mr. Bruce Ingham came into the property. Later they expressed the wish to convey the island to the King and to rename it Ingham Island. The government of Tobago and Trinidad arranged to provide for and preserve the birds. Food and water have since been carried regularly to the island. The birds are increasing in numbers rapidly.

Innocent Cheat

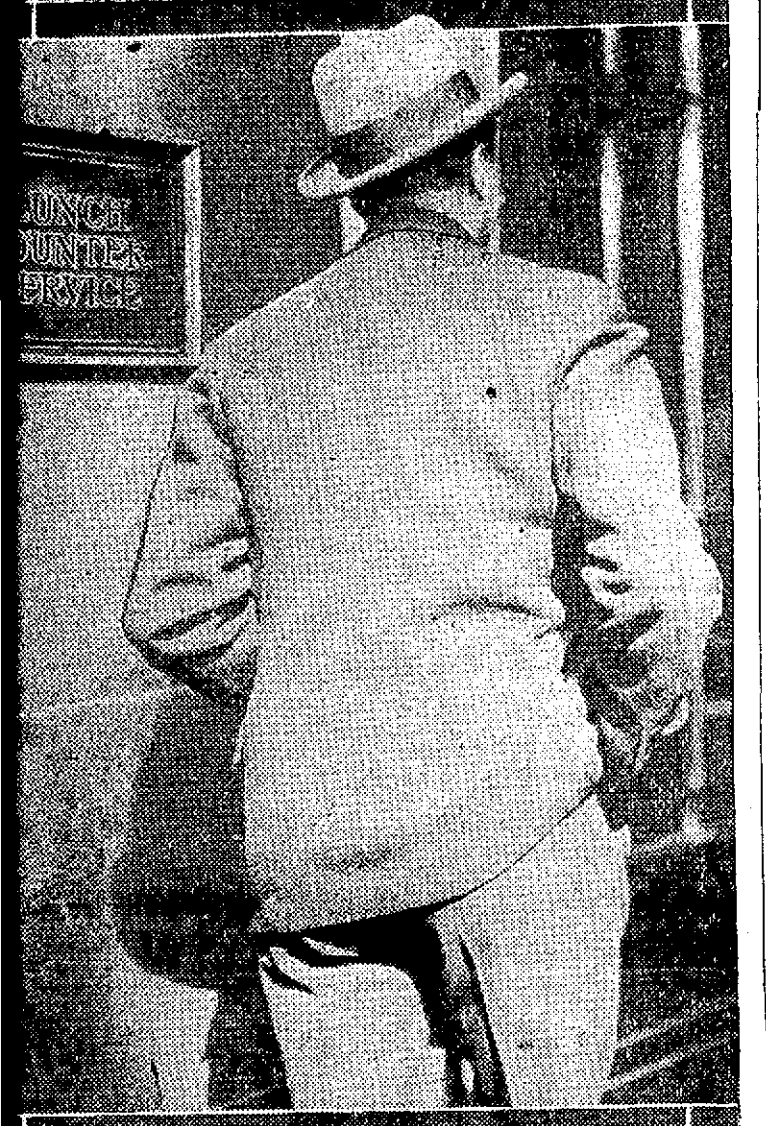

By Ruth Dewey Groves
AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL-POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Page feels unhappy when she is about giving up dancing parties and being Miss Simy just to please her handsome fiancé, Leonard Brent, with whom she accuses her of being in love. And her roommate calls her a gold digger. She sees him at the office day with another woman, making her school-girl infatuation for him, Brent exacts a promise to do anything he asks for, and says he will tell her her parentage after she graduates.

One day Brent spies a gold lock on a beggar who has fallen in the street. He bends over to take the lock and hears mumbled words about "Evangeline—disinfectant" and decides to help the beggar, and learn his story.

The beggar is too far gone to tell much except that his name is Charles Owens Nellin; that his father is dead; and that there was a woman named Evangeline whom he has

He went to look for Charles Nellin at the little coffee shop on the side street.

CHAPTER VII

Old man Cunningham is a born old fool!

The statement was made with a while the speaker glared at the listener as though he challenged to contradict it. But Brent did in no way inclined to do so, merely nodded with interest and went on.

There wasn't a prettier girl in the parts than Evangeline Cunningham," he said. "Proud too, but friendly. Not like the man, who's always been a bit of a nobby. Sort of a snob up with ingrown pride. He never conceals of Evangeline

Again Brite paused, and he seemed to have lost some of his to worry about."

Brite rose to the bait. "She had one child," he responded and hurried on to explain how he knew that much was certain. "I saw the letter she wrote her father, telling him about the little girl and asking help for her. The letter threw old Cunningham into a rage and I was sent for to bring something to quiet his nerves. He never mentioned Evangeline's name or the letter either, but the butler, who'd been with the family for years, had saved the torn up pieces. He told me about it—and said he recognized the handwriting and wanted to know how the young lady was getting along."

"Naturally," Brent agreed. "And I suppose Cunningham never answered the letter."

"I don't know about that," Brite admitted. "Maybe he did and maybe Evangeline wrote again, but one thing is sure; she never came back."

"She might have come secretly," Brent suggested but Brite shook his head.

"The servants would have known and I'd have heard about it," he said. "I was fond of her; they'd have let me know if she'd returned."

"What became of the child. Does anyone know that?"

"I never heard," Brite told him. "But I'd think," Brent began, taking a new tact, "that if Nellin was the sort of man to make his wife unhappy he'd have been after Cunningham for money."

Brite grunted. "H'm, well, maybe he was, but it's my guess that he had a kind of eccentric pride of his own. I knew him slightly. Never thought much of him but I wouldn't have said anything worse of him than that he was irresponsible."

Brent held out his cigarette case. "Smoke?" he invited. Brite accepted and Brent put the case back in his pocket before saying anything more.

"Then the story ends there?" he inquired smoothly.

"So far as I know," Brite amended. "We haven't seen hide nor hair of the Nellins since she went away with him. That's a long time ago, about 20 years, I should say. The old man's had plenty of time to regret his harshness."

"So he has regretted it?"

Brite shook his head. "If he has, no one around here seems to know it. He keeps pretty much to himself, never going out, and having little company. Mr. Greaves, his attorney, pays him a call now and then, and Dr. Ralston is in fairly regular attendance. Aside from them he sees practically no one."

"I see," Brent mused. "Mr. Greaves, an attorney, and his physician. Is the old gentleman failing?"

"Yes, quite rapidly."

"I see," Brent said again. "Perhaps he is making a belated search for his daughter."

"He'll die undelivered in my opinion," Brite predicted.

Brent closed his note-book with a sudden finality. "Well," he said brightly, "I'm much obliged to you indeed, Mr. Brite, for the information you've given me. It will make a great story."

"Now you be careful what you write," Brite cautioned him uneasily. "And perhaps you'd best not quote me directly," he added, his apprehension that he had said too much growing upon him.

"If the story is accepted, and I'm certain it will be," Brent assured him, "I'll let you see a copy of it before it is published."

"That's fine," Brite said with genuine relief. "When can I expect it?"

"Soon," Brent promised, "unless it is turned down. In the event that you do not receive a copy you will know that happened. So long and thank you very much."

Brent left, congratulating himself upon his success. So far Nellin's story had been verified.

"A damned good thing I took care to make myself hard to recognize if that babbling Brite should see me again," he told himself, thinking of his careless, rainy day attire and for the foresight that had prompted him to leave his car out of sight from the drug-store.

It would be rather difficult, he fancied, for anyone to see the slouchy newspaper man in the well-dressed Leonard Brent who looked for all the world a bone fide man-about town. After only one meeting at any rate.

He drove back to New York with a feeling of immense satisfaction. His work pleased him well. A few more questions put to Charles Nellin, an interest in the old ruin that would lead to finding a place for him where he could be out of the way—and the rest will be easy," Brent gloated.

At his hotel he found a message from Carmel and he telephoned her to say briefly that he could not accept her dinner invitation. Carmel hung up in a rage. She knew that Brent was breaking off with her, but she was not so desperately in love with him that she let herself be driven to reckless measures to hold him.

Brent smiled and called up Helen immediately. This he did but rarely. It delighted the girl whose voice came to him throbbing with her stirred-up emotions while she asked when he was coming up to school again.

Brent replied that it would be soon, and showed an eagerness on his own account to see her that Helen found a trifle puzzling but exceedingly thrilling.

Brent cautioned himself not to show too sudden a change toward her and cut short their conversation while Helen was still hoping that it had only been.

Then he went to look for Charles Nellin at the cheap little coffee house on the side street. He entered the place with the conviction that he would find his man. But he looked around in vain. Finally the waiter who had served him the night before saw him near the door and came quickly over to him.

"Are you looking for the old fellow, sir?" he asked.

Brent nodded. "Has he been about this evening?" he inquired.

"No sir, he hasn't. He didn't come back."

Brent frowned. "I might have expected it," he said lightly. "People who need help have generally made themselves so by being impossible to help," he generalized loftily. "But you don't happen to know what's become of him?" he added more definitely.

"I can't say sir. But I don't think it would be far wrong to look for him at the nearest flop house, seeing as how he had money for a bed."

"Thank you," Brent returned briefly and handed over a goodly tip. "Do you, by any chance, know where the nearest flop house is located?" he asked.

The waiter permitted himself a grin. "Sure I do, sir," he replied. "Down the street to the next corner east and then to the right three doors. Hope you find 'em, sir. He looked like a guy who'd seen better days. Thank you sir."

Brent followed the directions given him and in a few minutes reached the cheap lodging house. His inquiries there were fruitless until he asked for the manager. That philanthropic gentleman told him in a few words what had become of Nellin.

"We had a guy here last night that answers the description of the man you're lookin' for," he said, "but the name as Owens."

"Does he come here often?" Brent inquired.

"He did," the other replied, "but he won't come again."

Lady Says She Was Much Better After She Had Taken Cardui.

McComb, Miss.—"A few years ago, I was a sick woman and rather discouraged," says Mrs. H. E. Dunaway, of 821 Pearl River Avenue, this city. "I was so weak and thin, I was not able to do my work as it should have been done."

"This made me fret a good deal, and did not help my condition. I had pains across my back and lower part of my body. My nights were spent in rolling from one side of the bed to the other, hoping I would soon go to sleep. Then, when morning would come, I would be just as tired as when I went to bed."

"A neighbor, seeing how badly I felt, told me to try Cardui. After I had taken one bottle, I was much better. I kept on taking Cardui, and I was stronger and slept much better at night. I have been recommending it ever since."

Thousands of women have written that Cardui has helped them. This well-known medicine is composed of purely vegetable ingredients. Try it.

Insured buying

There's a way of insuring your bying against wasted money and unsatisfactory merchandise. And that insurance costs you not a penny. It is always paid up to date and in full force.

That insurance is the advertising here in your newspaper. Advertising products are standardized, perfected and carefully priced before they are even advertised.

Whether you are buying soap, clothing, shoes, toothpaste, food or electrical household appliances, the result is the same. You get reliable, economical merchandise whenever you buy by the advertise-ments.

Make up your insured shopping list in the comfort and quiet of your own home. Compare the merits of theproducts advertised. Study the way in which each is adapted to your needs.

You'll find advertising truthful, informing and interesting. That's the only sort that pays, you know.

Every dollar you spend on advertised merchandise is insured against waste.

Connie's Clouters

From time to time during the pennant battle, the prediction was made here and there that the Athletics would crack. While they slumped from time to time, Mack's machine showed no signs of breaking down. Will the big breakdown occur in the world series?

That's only a random question, of course, rather than a forecast that such a thing probably will happen. It strikes me, however, that it will be no disgrace for the A's to crack against the Cubs McCarty's men have had bad spots during the season, but during the last couple of weeks have given every indication of finishing strongly.

Another Tight Hander

The other day in New York one of the American League's right-handed pitchers, George Pipgras, bore out our contention that the Mack sluggers are in for some trouble with the Cub pitching staff. Pipgras gave the Philadelphians three hits. Other clubs knocked Pipgras out of the frequently this season. The Indians have chased him in showers five times.

The three big right-handed batting guns of the Philadelphia team got not so much as a scratch hit off Pipgras. Kid Gleason might just as well have been in there batting as Fox, Simmons and Bing Miller. George fed 'em that low curve ball on the outside and it was just too bad. We are offering this simply in an effort to bear out our contention that the Cub pitchers, Root, Bush and Malone, will be effective against the Macks in the world series.

Hornsbys' Great Plying

Owner Bill Wrigley isn't sitting up nights chemoing his fingernails over the Cub situation as second base. It looks as though Hornsbys will be able to handle that for a while.

During the last few weeks of the campaign the Rajah has hit his true stride. The other day against Cincy he couldn't get any more than four blows because he only got four chances to bat. This should be a great series for the Rajah, who is a good money player.

Home Life Insurance Company Announces its new GOLD STANDARD POLICY

This Policy is what Every Agent* has always wanted

MANY insurance executives long have believed that select risks between the ages of 10 and 41 are entitled to more liberal policies—policies which afford increased protection against all major hazards. In its New GOLD STANDARD Policy, the Home Life Insurance Company meets this issue fully and completely. The GOLD STANDARD provides the perfect thrift program, combined with ideal and adequate protection within reach of every pocketbook. But, naturally, everyone cannot secure this policy. Only those who are select and preferred risks are eligible for this new and splendid protection. Here is how the GOLD STANDARD works, for instance:

A $10,000.00 FACE VALUE POLICY With Double Indemnity

Pays Your Family $10,000.00

In case of your untimely death... either in a lump sum, or in the form of a monthly income, over any period you elect.

Pays Your Family $20,000.00

In case of your accidental death. This double indemnity is particularly important because of the increasing hazards of automobile traffic and other accidents.

Pays You $10,000.00

In case of the accidental death of your beneficiary while riding in any kind of public or private conveyance.

The Home Life Insurance Company now offers the New GOLD STANDARD Policy in units of $1,000.00 and more. It meets the needs of the average man more comprehensively than any other policy. Without obligation on your part, we urge you to get in touch with the nearest Home Life Representative and allow him to explain the New GOLD STANDARD Policy in all its details... and determine if you are entitled to the unusual benefits and complete protection it affords. Or, write the Home Office in Little Rock for full information.

BODCAW

The Bodcaw Community Fair will be held at the school house Friday, September 20. This is the third event of its kind to be held at Bodcaw and we have good reason to believe that it will be the best one that has ever been held here. Very liberal prizes are being offered in all departments.

One big feature of the Fair will be the Community Exhibits. The first premium offered for a Community Exhibit is $15, second $10. Some communities near Bodcaw plan to bring a community exhibit to the Bodcaw Fair and then take it to the Southwest Arkansas Fair at Hope and then take it to the Nevada County Fair at Prescott. All exhibits will be judged by competent judges.

A meeting of the school board for the new consolidated district and the local board was held in the church last Thursday at 1:00 p. m. The purpose of the meeting was to make a school building to accommodate all the pupils that will be in school here this year.

All the Bodcaw teachers attended the county teacher's meeting held at the court house last Friday. They report a good meeting with some excellent speeches.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Whitten are the proud parents of a fine baby girl born last Monday.

The agriculture teacher at Bodcaw, Kenneth Sager, attended the Experiment Station day at Scott, Arkansas last Tuesday.

Gilford Marlar who has been ill with typhoid fever for several weeks is much improved.

METHUEN, Mass., Sept. 10.—The 1930 model automobile whose equipment includes a safety belt and parachute will make a hit with Mrs. Jeanette Jordan.

Police were notified that a woman, in a dazed condition, was wandering along Oakland avenue. When an officer questioned the woman, who proved to be Mrs. Jordan, she could not remember what had happened to her.

Hours later Mrs. Jordan recovered her memory and sheepishly explained that she had been motoring with her husband and had been bounced out of the rumble seat.

Now is the time to plant your fall crops. We have seed oats and rye. Southern Grain & Produce Co. Sept 6-3tc.

Streaked Surfaces on Furniture Caused by Moisture

Many housewives complain of the streaked appearance of their furniture after it has been polished. Some blame the wood, some the furniture polish, some the method of making has put the blame on atmospheric conditions and lack of knowledge on the part of the housewife.

One of the chief causes of streaking, in fine woods, is the fact that they are polished when damp. Therefore, before cleaning fine articles, the careful housewife should see that each piece is thoroughly dry, and then apply a high-grade polish.

The Standard Oil Company of Louisiana has developed "Standard" Liquid Gloss, a polish especially prepared for use on fine furniture. It cleans and polishes in one operation, bringing out the beauty of grain of the wood. On sale at all dealers. 4-oz. bottle, 25c; 12-oz. bottle, 50c. Also in quart, gallon, and 5-gallon tins.—Adv.
